LAND SALES.

Winnipeg Commercial: While the settlement of our vacant lands is not progressing as fast as we would wish, it is nevertheless quite apparent that the sales of farm lands has been steadily and rapidly increasing during the past few years. The reports of all the large land companies show this. The land sales of the Canadian Pacific Railway company show a large increase the last couple of years, and the present year bids fair to show a far greater expansion of land business than during the previous year. The report of the Northwest Land company, recently published, may be taken as an indication of what has been going on in the land business. The company's sales for the last four years compare as follows:

This and other reports indicate that our vacant lands are being taken up more rapidly than many have imagined. Our country is of such vast extent and the quantity of land available so great, that a few thousand new settlers each year are hardly noticed. Many of the older settlements, however, good farms are difficult to pick up, except at a price which would tempt some of the older farmers to sell out, with the hope of picking up a new farm in another locality at a lower price. Of course there will be abundance of land in new districts for many years to come, but the present seems to be about as favorable a time as we are likely to have, for obtaining land in districts now partially settled and possessing good markets and other conveniences.

DECLINED.

The following, taken from the Regina Standard, meets with the hearty approval of this sheet, and if a few more of the papers published in the Territories were to run their business on the same lines we should not hear of so many "ups-and-downs" in the newspaper business.

"The standard declines with thanks the generous offer (half cash in advance) of the Hamilton banker who desires to advertise his lottery scheme through these columns. Neither we nor our readers have time to waste on humbugs.

The offer of the Chicago saleratus company under that tendered us $1.75 for a ten dollar tender is declined also. There is no sentiment in this instance. We decline for reasons of a business nature. We are the compounder that if he dies from natural causes instead of violence, he should not mistake contraction of the pericardium for enlargement of the heart.

To the Toronto man who offers "home grown" nursery stock in exchange for advertising, we can say that we have a nursery of our own, all stocked with the home grown all free from the San Jose scale and just recovering from a mild attack of German measles.

After July 1st, interest on deposits in the trustee savings bank will be reduced to 1-2 per cent.

is looking rather disconsolate this it" for the nuggets.

—Mr. A. W. Markley, of Calgary, was a passenger on Saturday night's east bound train. He went through to Winnipeg.

club will be held in Spenceville hall on Friday, April 1st. Teams commenced on the building as soon as the balance of the lumber arrives.

his resignation, to take effect on April 1st. "Bobby" will be much missed, as he was very popular among the "boys."

our station today the largest goose egg we have ever seen. Its length —Mr. J. E. Johnson, of Ft. H.B., was a visitor on Thursday. He has been improving his stock lately and was on his way home. He purchased a few head of cattle, which he has been purchased from J. Lawrence of Clearwater, Man.

—Mrs. C. B. Evans and family were at the Queen's last night.
They went west on this morning's train to Medicine Hat, where they will join Mr. Evans, who has opened out in the fruit and confectionery business at that place.

—About 6,000 head of cattle will be ready to ship from this point as soon as the cattle season opens.
Other points on the line will also ship out large numbers. The M & N. W. R. are doing all in their power to stop the exportation of stockers to the United States, as the country along the line can absorb all the stockers that can be raised here.—Yorkton Enterprise.

—There are several checks due to patrons of the creamery, which have not been claimed. The secretary, Mr. Harvey, is desirous that all those who have not yet received their checks for 1897 will apply at once at the office of McCaul & Harvey.

—We are pleased to hear that Mr. Angus Raymond, who has been confined to the house for some months past, and who on Monday was stricken with a much more serious attack, is now improving, and his medical adviser has hopes of his ultimate recovery.

—A letter to The Progress from Messrs. Baird, Paine and Bailey, who left last week for the gold fields via Edmonton, has been received. At the time of writing all were well, but considerably annoyed at having to remain three days at Calgary owing to a snow blockade of the road.

—A social in connection with the Presbyterian church was held at the residence of Mr. G. Bursea, about two miles from town, on Tuesday evening last. A large number of young people from the town went out, and a most enjoyable time was spent.

paper and see how you stand.

the Canada Carriage Co. of Brockville, Ont., and also a car of wagons and plows. The plows are of American make, and include the John Deere high-lift sulky, double furrow gang and walking plows. The Moline wagon, also wagons and plows of Canadian make. ad —On Saturday last Dr. Henderson defeated J. Booth in the final game for the silver cup, and in the evening Bailey defeated Henderson in the second draw for the gold nuggets. This was an exciting game, much interest in it being taken by the spectators. On Monday night Henderson and Bailey again played, this being the final game in the competition. The game was a hard one from the start, both rinks striving for su-premaccy. Bailey was 2 up at the last end, and looked like a winner, but a miss with his last stone left Henderson J. putting him 1 up and winning the nuggets.

Report bicyclists have already entered in riding a single wheel or tricycle for short distances. In years past the university may become as common a mode of transportation as the bicycle. Only a few years ago people would have laughed at the idea that all the world would shortly be wheeling.
It is not in mechanics alone that the world is making rapid progress. Not many years ago all physicians pronounced consumption an incurable disease. To-day a cure is effected of people recognize that it is a difficulty merely. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery cures 90 per cent of all cases of consumption.
It has stood the test for thirty years. Thousands of people who were given up by their doctors, and had lost all hope saw their lives in this marvellous remedy. It acts directly on the lungs, driving out all impurities and disease germs. It restores the appetite, corrects all disorders of the digestion, strengthens the weak stomach, makes the assimilation of the food giving elements of the food perfect, invigorates the liver, purifies the blood and tones the nerves. It is the great blood maker and flesh builder.
It does not make flabby flesh like cod liver oil, but the firm, muscular tissue of absolute health. An honest dealer will not offer you an inferior substitute for the sake of a little added profit.

Mrs. Mary Whitman, of East Dickinson, Franklin Co., N. Y., writes: "For nearly ten months I have had a bad cough, and instead of getting better it grew worse. I was told to have consumption. I tried Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and when the second bottle was empty I had no cough and was cured."

activity of the bowels. Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. They are safe, sure, and quick. One little Pellet is a gentle cathartic. They never grip, drag, or hurt.

NO POWER TO PROHIBIT. SO MR. BLAKE ADVISES.

In His Report to the Provincial Government on the Prohibition Question.

Last session Mr. Myers, of Minnesota, made a motion, which was carried, declaring the desirability of the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors. The executive council should prepare a report on the question. The executive council should prepare a report on the question.

The question is not put in the alternative. It is put as a whole and asked whether the legislature has the power as to the three branches, "importation, manufacture and sale." He asserts that a minister of the gospel should not enter politics, and he hoped that because one man had committed an error, the superannuation fund would not suffer, as there are many widows, orphans and worn out ministers depending on it.

A letter from Col. Ward, secretary of the Royal Military tournament, is being sent to a Canadian contingent to participate. The idea is to make it an imperial tournament. It takes place May 19. As there is a tournament in Canada on May 7, it is not likely the team will be sent.

The unexpected alliance of one of the heirs of the Pullman millions and the California beauty took place at the home of a minister and was a quiet affair.

Bookmaking in the Middle Ages.

It required a man of great parts to be a successful publisher at that time, as much as or even more than it does today. Such an institution, for example as the Sorbonne or University of Paris required the highest guarantees of character, capital and literary capacity in the licensed bookseller. He must be an adept in all the knowledge and science of the period, as well as perfectly skilled in the mechanical needs of his business. The university, which was always in close touch with the church, even when its studies had begun to broaden, exercised a jealous censorship, lest some religious heresy should creep in. Whenever an error of this or even of a more trivial sort was found, the transcripts were burned and the bookseller heavily fined. Sometimes his privileges might be entirely revoked, indeed, and he himself imprisoned. The bookseller could not even fix a price on his own products.

Four of the guild in Paris, for example, were sworn as appraisers by the authorities of the Sorbonne to fix the selling value of a book, and any deviation from this was a penal offense. To protect the price was fixed at two-thirds of the charge asked of the general purchaser. The bookseller could not dispose of their entire stock and trade without the license of the university.

It required a man of great parts to be a successful publisher at that time, as much as or even more than it does today. Such an institution, for example as the Sorbonne or University of Paris required the highest guarantees of character, capital and literary capacity in the licensed bookseller. He must be an adept in all the knowledge and science of the period, as well as perfectly skilled in the mechanical needs of his business. The university, which was always in close touch with the church, even when its studies had begun to broaden, exercised a jealous censorship, lest some religious heresy should creep in. Whenever an error of this or even of a more trivial sort was found, the transcripts were burned and the bookseller heavily fined. Sometimes his privileges might be entirely revoked, indeed, and he himself imprisoned. The bookseller could not even fix a price on his own products.

Four of the guild in Paris, for example, were sworn as appraisers by the authorities of the Sorbonne to fix the selling value of a book, and any deviation from this was a penal offense. To protect the price was fixed at two-thirds of the charge asked of the general purchaser. The bookseller could not dispose of their entire stock and trade without the license of the university.

Watering House Plants.

I am satisfied that not 1 person in 20 is aware that too much water is more dangerous to the plants than too little. Some gardeners seem to have the idea that to take a watering pot in hand to supply the needs of plants is an easy duty, and that to give a dash here and there to the soil there is all there is to do the matter. One thing is to be observed: Not all plants under all circumstances, nor, indeed, the same plants under different circumstances require the same amount of water. It is necessary, therefore, to study the nature and habits of kinds so that each may be treated according to its needs. A vigorous blooming plant, say a fuchsia or geranium, might be said to represent the maximum need of water. The same when in a state of rest, in cool, damp weather, the minimum requirement as to this. Therefore, to give exactly the same quantity of water in both conditions named would be to cause harm by not giving enough water to some and too much to others. One safe rule is to wait until the ball of earth begins to get rather dry, and then to give enough water to moisten the soil through and through. Then do not water again until the former state of dryness is reached, be that time six hours or six days. —Vick's Magazine

Underground Flow of Rivers.

F. R. Spearman writes of "Queer American Rivers" in St. Nicholas. Speaking of the rivers of the western plains Mr. Spearman says: The irrigation engineers have lately discovered something wonderful about even these despoiled rivers. During the very driest seasons, when the stream is apparently quite dry, there is still a great body of water running in the sand. Like a vast sponge the sand holds the water, yet it flows continually, just as if it were in plain sight, but more slowly, of course. The volume may be estimated by the depth and breadth of the sand. One pint of it will hold three-quarters of a pint of water. This is called the underground flow, and is peculiar to this class of rivers. By means of ditches this water may be brought to the surface for irrigation.

Mistress and Maid.

The confusion begins when Maria and her mistress meet in that wonderful arena of ignorance and misunderstanding—the intelligence office.

The mistress does all the talking.

I am aware that certain dogged writers of humor are in the habit of making this appear quite otherwise, but my own observations bear out my statement. Maria usually manages to stimulate for her "every other Sunday" and her "every other Thursday," but for the rest she gives herself unquestioning, uncomplaining, into the employ of an unknown mistress, who seldom informs her definitely just what is expected of her and who could repel any attempt on Maria's part to find out for herself. Yet I have never been able to understand why in a contract supposed to be of equal interest all the right to self-satisfaction should be on one side. I see no reason why Maria should not ask questions of Mrs. Talbot as well as Mrs. Talbot of Maria.

Nor have my own experiences led me to believe that in such an encounter Maria is not as likely to behave herself with propriety and respect as Maria's employer, and so far from degrading the disposition on the part of a servant to ascertain somewhat definitely beforehand just what is expected of her I regard it as quite worthy of respect and attention. "Do you allow servants to ask you questions in an intelligence office?" Some Mrs. Talbot is going to spend her time with this question. —Helen Watterston Moody in Scribner's.

With Your Children.

Take your child by the hand and lead her into the world of make believe. Her doll will open her mind to the care and tenderness that will one day be demanded of her.

Please to tell your little ones fairy tales. They will lead them to believe in friendly though invisible forces, which assist the will. They will lead to a hope for happiness unknown to real life, but which nevertheless exists, because they themselves experience it under the spell of the fairy tale.

As far as you can choose your son's associates. See to it that you know all his friends and let him feel perfectly free to invite them to the house. Take pains to make him and them comfortable and happy. He will not be slow in appreciating your thoughtfulness.

Be reverent in approaching child nature. Hold yourself in. Remember that far more important than emotional outbursts, tears and sobs and tears, is the steady resolve to do the thing that is right, to be truthful and obedient, unselfish, pure and noble.

Note that when a child once realizes that you cannot remit a punishment because it would be wrong, the galling sense of unkindness vanishes. —Philadelphia Ledger.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Our columns are open to all for the discussion of public questions. Personalities will not be permitted. We cannot hold our correspondents responsible for the opinions expressed by correspondents.

To the Patrons of Qu'Appelle Creamery.
To the Editor of The Progress.

Dear Sir—Will you kindly allow me space in your paper to make a few remarks and suggestions to the patrons of the Qu'Appelle Creamery.

I began with, I am very well pleased with the success which has attended the operation of the creamery since its opening. From the first the creamery has been a success. The cream is of the highest quality and the butter is of the highest quality. The creamery has been a success from the first.

I had a short time ago read of the Winnipeg papers extracts from letters received by Mr. Robertson from the firms who had the Northwest territory butter in England. The one from the firm who was for a long time the largest butter exporter in the world, the other from the firm who was for a long time the largest butter exporter in the world.

In determining the quality of butter the two principal factors are the cream and the butter. As regards the cream, I do not think we can find any fault with the cream. The cream is of the highest quality and the butter is of the highest quality.

There are now one or two ways in which we might improve the creamery. The first is to improve the cream. The second is to improve the butter. The third is to improve the creamery.

Secondly, have provided for the principal changes which have been made in the creamery. The creamery has been a success from the first. The cream is of the highest quality and the butter is of the highest quality.

Temperance.

By Frances E. Willard.

In the first place they can care about it and plainly show where they stand and this is no trifle in the midst of a general and crooked generation. They can do as the sturdy young fellow did whose statement I hear set forth.

"Somebody asked me to take a drink. What did I tell him? What do you think?"

"I told him, No."

"Somebody gave me a cigarette. And asked me to smoke it. What did he get?"

"I told him, No."

"Somebody laughs that I will not swear. And he says, 'but I do not care!'"

"I told him, No."

"Somebody asked me to take a sail. On the Sabbath day. 'Twas of no avail. I told him, No."

"If I cannot enter this, come, though not. My life is sold, and on the spot I told him, No!"

"Write it on the wall of the gate. Write it on the chimney of a slave. Write it on the copybook. That the young boy often look."

"Where there's a drink there's danger."

"Write it on the churchyard mound. Where the rum-ain dead are found. Write it on the gallow's legs. Write for all the pavers by."

"Where there's a drink, there's danger."

"Write it in the nation's laws. Botting out the license clause. Write it on each ballot white. So it can be read aright."

"Where there's a drink there's danger."

"Write it on the ships that sail. Borne along by storm and gale. Write it in letters plain. Over every land and main."

"Where there's a drink there's danger."

"Write it over every gate. On the church and halls of state. In the heart of every land. On the laws of every land."

I knew a gifted man who was and is one of our most devoted temperance writers, who told me that, although he had broken off from drink, the bondage of tobacco was a strong upon him that he cut up in the night to smoke cigars, and begrudged the time he spent at noon, because he could not have a cigar in his mouth. Several of his friends in an upper room at a temperance campmeeting to pray that he might get the victory over his pernicious habit. As we rose from prayer, he handed one of us the cigars that he then had in his pocket. That was twenty years ago, and I have every reason to believe that he has never smoked since. I should like some scientist to attempt this transformation. To me it seems that my beloved friend's love of smoking was driven out by what a great victory he had won. The "explosive" power of a cigar is a great one.

We must never cease our individual work for men and women who are enslaved by evil habits. If we do not work for this, what are we for?
